Motorcycle crash kills one, closes Pioneer Bridge

By Steve Marschke

One motorcyclist was killed and two others were injured following a middle-of-the-night freeway accident which left part of U.S. 50 closed near Jefferson Blvd. late Saturday night.

According to Officer Colleen Buser, a spokesperson for the California Highway Patrol, the stage for the accident was set when a car crashed into the center divider around 11:50 p.m. Saturday and was left there, partly in the number one lane on the westbound side of the freeway bridge.

"We're still trying to identify the driver," she said, adding that a suspect was under consideration but was now being matched against physical evidence.

Six minutes after the first, single-car crash, a pair of motorcycles came to the scene.

It is unclear whether they simply struck the first car and crashed, or whether, as one witness said, another car struck the parked one and then struck the motorcycles.

But Henry Manning, 31, crashed and was killed on one of the motorcycles. Riders James Roberts, 40, and his wife Sylvia, 43, crashed on the other and sustained serious injuries.

Manning and James Roberts were enlisted men stationed at Travis Air Force Base, said Buser, and the two motorcycles may have been travelling together.

"It doesn't look like excessive speed was involved," said Buser. "There's a possibility of alcohol involvement."

For about two hours, westbound traffic on U.S. 50 was closed at the scene of the accident while investigators reviewed the scene. Traffic was rerouted to the Jefferson Blvd. exit, and then permitted to rejoin the freeway by taking the Jefferson/U.S. 50 westbound onramp.

Voter lists are in good shape, says the Yolo County Clerk

By Steve Marschke

Despite a TV news story which may have misused a statistic, said Yolo County Clerk Tony Bernhard, the county's voter registration rolls are in good shape.

A recent flap started when the news story publicized an allegation that 22 percent of the names and addresses on local voter files are bogus. But that number had come from a Washington, D.C., mailing list company which trades on such lists and was misleading, said Bernhard.

"They use a computer program which looks at our addresses and sorts out 'problematic' addresses," he said Tuesday. These non-conforming addresses may not meet postal service standards, but that doesn't make them fraudulent, added Bernhard.

Bernhard said that the presence of a major university and its dormitories in Yolo, as well as the rural nature of the county, mean that its list of non-conforming addresses will be higher than normal when measured this way.

"I have residence halls (at UC Davis) full of registrants at their room number and, for example, Bixby Hall, which is a non-standard address. We have rural route addresses which have switched over to street number addresses, but not all the registrants have made that switch."

These distortions jack up the number of imperfectly addressed voters' homes, he said. But the real number of obsolete voter registrations in Yolo is a lot lower.

"We estimate the dead wood is about eight percent, which is not bad," said Bernhard. "There isn't a real good way to measure this, because if you really knew it was dead wood, you would remove it. But you can't just remove somebody from the list because somebody else calls up and says they don't live there. We have to receive postal notification that somebody has moved, and then we send a card to them to confirm it."

Fraud is rare, he said. There is the occasional "person who flaunts the system by registering his dog to vote," but those are rare. Mostly, the bad addresses are simply the result of someone moving without notifying the elections department.

"But if you know of voter fraud, don't just sit around and grumble about it, call us."

About 73,000 voters are registered in Yolo County, said Bernhard. The amount of these who actually vote in a given election varies, with up to around 75 percent of them voting in a presidential election.

Health slow to return: city councilman Roland Hensley resigns office

By Steve Marschke

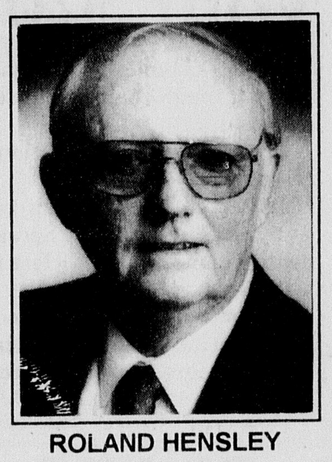
Roland Hensley has announced his resignation from the city council.

In a letter of resignation to the city delivered this week, Hensley cites stubborn health problems which have necessitated a return to private life. A retired businessman, Hensley is being treated for both Parkinson's Disease and a heart ailment, and his recovery has not been swift since surgery late last year. Hensley has not attended city council meetings since that surgery.



ROLAND HENSLEY

"I enjoyed being on the council for the most part," he said Tuesday. "There's more to it than meets the eye. You have to stay on top of what's going on in the committees and commissions you're on, as well as keep up on the council's agenda. It's really more than a part time job to do it right."

A Park Blvd. resident, Hensley is most proud of his work in helping to patch two potholes in the local law enforcement establishment -- by helping to smooth over a bad relationship between police officers and city management, and by helping to acquire a new police facility (a soon-to-be-remodeled industrial building on Triangle Ct.) to replace the inadequate old sheriff's substation near the I St. bridge.

The police are now beginning to ready for the transition between their old and new facilities.

"I think I had something to do with the new police building," he commented, speaking of his accomplishments. "On the other hand, I would have liked to have seen a new bridge go over the deep water channel while I was a council member, so we can get some development down there."

A council member since 1993, Roland Hensley hopes to recover his health and then travel a bit.

Hensley's enthusiasm for law enforcement comes partly from having three sons in the field. Two, sergeants Ed and Ray Hensley, work for West Sacramento Police Department. Another serves with the Highway Patrol.

Three daughters -- Pat Hart, Sheila Gay and Brenda Morazzini -- also live and work in the area.

Hensley's wife is Jewell Hensley. He said that after he feels better, he hopes they can do some travelling abroad.

Hensley was sworn into office in 1993, after a five-way contest for the seat vacated by Mike McGowan. Hensley won with 53.4 percent of the vote. McGowan had resigned from the council after winning election to the county board of supervisors.

Hensley was re-elected to the council in 1994, for a four year term into 1998.

City clerk Helen Kanowsky said that the council will have the option of appointing a fifth person to the council to fill Hensley's seat through the end of that term, or of leaving it vacant until the election scheduled for November of this year.

Mayor Greg Potnick said he was surprised at the news that Hensley was resigning.

"I fully expected Roland to come back after his convalescence," he commented. "I certainly wish him the best. It's definitely a loss for the community -- he's put a lot of effort into this city, and I'm sure he'll be involved in the future in one way or another."

Potnick said the council would hold a meeting to discuss how the council and the public wish to deal with the vacant seat.

Native makes good

Submitted by Louisa R. Vessell

Claire Johnson (the former Claire Painter of West Sacramento) has been chosen one of 12 volunteers of the year for her new locale, San Mateo County.

Johnson grew up in the Broderick area of West Sacramento.

She was nominated for the award by the city of Brisbane. San Mateo had 13 categories for its volunteer service awards, and Johnson received hers for her work in public safety and emergency preparedness.

She founded the community emergency volunteer group for the city of Brisbane, and represented the city on the local assessment committee of San Francisco's City/County Planning Department, which deals with the enlargement of San Francisco's Household Hazardous Waste Facility.

Johnson graduated from James Marshall High School in West Sacramento in 1963.

She recently retired from public service as a former mayor and city council person for Brisbane, serving on the council from 1990 to 1995.

Brisbane's chamber of commerce honored Johnson as its "citizen of the year" in 1995, recognizing her for her work in the city's recycling and sister city programs and on its general plan committee and emergency services council.

Lighthouse, city negotiating on streets

Public 'abandonment' to pave way for gated community

West Sacramento's city council plans a hearing to discuss abandoning public ownership of the streets within the Lighthouse project on the city's northeastern riverfront -- a move which would be a step towards making the long-stalled development a gated community. But the May 1 hearing will only take place if the city and the developers can negotiate a solution to cost and infrastructure issues later this month, said Mayor Greg Potnick.

Included in the discussion are six issues, such as who will be responsible for sewer repairs and other infrastructure questions.

"We need to hear back from Lighthouse and hear if they're going to accept the memorandum of understanding," said Potnick.

The project has dropped plans to build a marina, allowing the adjoining marina property to be foreclosed upon. No homes in the project have been built, sold and occupied.

Pheasant Hollow, Cheaper get the nod

Two controversial developments received city approval this month after their second trip in front of the West Sacramento City Council.

The council gave a go-ahead to a new "Cheaper" discount grocery store and gas station at Jefferson Blvd. and Linden Rd. south, with Mayor Greg Potnick joining council members Wes Beers and Cindy Tuttle with "aye" votes. Councilman Bill Kristoff abstained, due to property ownership interests nearby, and Councilman Roland Hensley was absent.

Also benefitting from a three-vote approval was the Pheasant Hollow subdivision planned for near Higgins Rd. and Jefferson Blvd. With over 90 units and eight acres of commercial development planned, the Lewis Homes project was okayed by Potnick, Kristoff and Beers. Tuttle abstained because of a business relationship with the neighboring Touchstone Condiminium development, which must negotiate a drainage solution with Pheasant Hollow before the project can go forward.

Councilman Hensley was absent due to illness.

Accident victim identified

Police have released the identity of a 75-year old West Sacramento man struck by a car and killed early April 9 near Jefferson Blvd. and F Street.

The victim was Leonard Wagner, said Lt. Russ Thomas of the West Sacramento Police Department.

The driver involved in the accident has not been charged with any crime. Police believe the accident was the result of early morning darkness in which Wagner was simply not seen by the driver as Wagner crossed the street.

Forget 'mad cow disease': cow flatulence is the threat

{This is the last in a series of animals and how they relate to West Sacramento. Mr. Smoot shall resume his regular types of topics from now on, or he'll get a whack in the head with a stick.--Mrs. Smoot.}

By T.J. Smoot

"Bovine Production of Methane: A thought provoking missive on an environmentally green issue, which if left unchecked, could end the world as we know it." (A presentation read before the convention of Bovine Union of Related Practices (BURP), West Sacramento, CA, November 14, 1993. Offered up by Tobias James Smoot.)

(Clear throat and smile benevolently) Good afternoon Ladies, Gentlemen, Mr. and Mrs. Vice President. Bovine Production of Methane Gas, or "Bopromethga" as it is commonly known among the initiated, has recently plopped into the scientific community as an issue of which we in Yolo County must now sit up and take action. No longer can we responsible citizens just sit idly by and pretend that we don't notice. No, we must clear the air. The alarming truth is that cows can be dangerous to the health of our planet.

Case in point: A recent study by the Information Unit on Climate Change based in Chatelaine, Switzerland* revealed alarming information about bovines and the dangerously high levels of methane gas they produce either by direct emission or from the lingering effects of their pronounced olfactory odoriferous products (POOP). It is estimated that some 100 tons per year of methane gas are produced by cattle and dairy cows as well as some other animals [whom shall remain nameless at this point for fear of someone recognizing themselves]. Now we know that that is a heck of a lot of methane. (Gently, but firmly pound podium) Imagine 100 tons of methane on your front porch. Shoot, imagine 10 tons. Personally, I would not be happy with a pound and a half floating around my front door.

Although the gas has (fortunately) a relatively short life in the general atmosphere, it just plain smells bad and you could ruin your shoes if you step in one of those POOPs. Just ask a man of experience.(Step back a little, take glasses off, and put hands in coat pockets) As a youth practicing for long distance track races, I used to run up and down hills where cattle grazed. It was actually quite dangerous. Once, I did encounter a POOP, slipped a foot or two and could have seriously tweaked my ankle or knee. But I digress. (Shuffle papers and chuckle good-naturedly) Back to serious cow data. (Put glasses back on) Dairy cattle in developing nations can produce 77 wonderful enriched pounds of gaseous methane per year to 2.5 times that amount or 192.5 lbs, based simply upon the type of feed given them. In fact, cows emit 70% of the total methane produced from domestic animals. (Take off glasses, lean on podium and point spectacles at the audience in confidence) Now my dog, Toby, can't hold a candle to those kinds of figures. (Put glasses back on) Researchers indicate that by the year 2025, there will be an increase in demand of up to 45% in demand for cow meat. With that demand will come an increase in the methane production that is released into our unsuspecting atmosphere. For you technical types out there, the formula to convert plant matter to methane gas is: [microbial organic plant matter] + $H_20$ [water]------->$CO_2W$ +$CH_4$ + [more smelly nutrients and other metabolized products that you don't want to know about].

Now let's talk about local application. We all know that West Sacramento gets a lot of negative press about environmental hazards blown way out of proportion like itsy bitsy violations of water discharges into the River and that pesky paper recycling plant that just keeps coming back in a different form. But West Sacramento is doing probably one of the most important green things it can do: We have hardly any cows. (Wait for applause) Normally, our environmentally sensitive/tolerant neighbor to the West, UC Davis, is up to snuff on such stuff, but frankly, they're in a green fog on this issue. Just look at them. They raise a bunch of cows for research and all. That's good in and of itself. But what about the air pollution these cows produce. Hey, facts don't lie. And did I forget to mention that they also have a real live Pig Barn right next to one of their freshmen dormitories? This is true. Now, I'm no Louis Pasture, but trying to compete with the top 12% of the high school graduates while waving off a couple of pounds of pig methane has got to be cownter-productive to getting good grades. No student will be in the moood to study. It would behoof the University to heed this authentic scholarship and relocate the Pig Barn or at least put up a big fan.

I think I've made my point. And those of us West Sacramentan, non-bovine owners can walk proudly and carefully because we have taken the bull by the horns and stood against bovine methane production to eliminate one big hunkin' source of air pollution. Thank you. Thank you. (Wait a few appropriate moments while the thunderous applause lessens and then walk humbly down from the podium.)

Just $3 of your $20 donation makes it to the war on drugs

Want to support law enforcement?

The fight against drugs?

The search for missing children?

Send us your money, says the voice on the phone.

"Boiler rooms" full of telemarketers have long learned to use such pitches to raise money for fashionable causes such as these, often preying on the wallets of senior citizens and others through their phone solicitations.

Frequently, the operations are bogus.

One such pitch, which recently solicited a West Sacramento woman, was not. Here is how it shaped up:

The woman, who asked not to be identified, was solicited by a phone representative of the California Narcotics Officers Association (C.N.O.A.), a nonprofit organization which supports law enforcement, the fight against drug abuse, and related causes.

The organization mailed a letter with a return stub to her at the woman's request.

The organization is legitimate and respectable, said a local police lieutenant. And the letter from the C.N.O.A. included an address and phone number for inquiries, saying that donated money will help it provide drug abuse information and conduct seminars and conferences on fighting narcotics abuse.

The letter also confirmed that the C.N.O.A. "has hired a professional fundraiser, MPI, to aid us in obtaining pledges and advertising revenue."

The organization asked for a $20 donation.

How much of the money would make it to the C.N.O.A., and how much would go to the fundraising company?

A spokesman for the C.N.O.A. told the News-Ledger that 15 percent of the donated money would be retained by his organization. The other 85 percent would go to the telemarketers and to pay expenses.

The deal is not particularly unusual. Other law enforcement associations often strike similar deals with fundraising firms, and often less than ten percent of the donated proceeds make it to the law enforcement groups.

Some charitable-sounding organizations don't bother using any of the money for the causes they pretend over the phone to be supporting. Such companies are merely "fronts" for a telemarketing scheme.

Children's immunizations are both cheap and necessary, says health dept.

From the Yolo County Department of Public Health

Many young children in Yolo County are not adequately protected against dangerous diseases such as measles, whooping cough, polio and hepatitis B. Approximately one in four children under the age of two years in the United States is not properly immunized and the statistics in Yolo County children are not much better, states Dr. Robert O. Bates, Yolo County Public Health Officer.

This year's National Infant Immunization Week, April 21-27, is a full week of opportunities to increase awareness of the problem of infant immunization and highlight the role that members of the community play in raising infant immunization rates. The Yolo County Health Department coordinates a Special Immunization Program with the goal of having 90 percent of all two-year-old children fully immunized.

Dr. Bates further stated that every child has access to immunizations in Yolo County. Pediatric and family practice physicians can receive vaccine at no charge through the Vaccines for Children Program and therefore they can provide immunizations at greatly reduced fees. Children who have Medi-Cal, meet income eligibility for CHDP, have insurance that DOES NOT cover immunizations, or qualify in another way, can receive immunizations at NO cost. The Yolo County Health Department provides vaccines to rural health clinics, community clinics and to Indian Health clinics so that family income is not a barrier.

Raider tennis will pit win streak against Bear River's best Thursday

From River City High School

The River City High School Tennis Team made it safely through its second straight week of non-league play with wins against Vanden and Bret Harte, running its current win streak to five. "We couldn't have written a better script leading up to the Bear River showdown (this Thursday at RC at 3:30 p.m.) than to beat a pair of playoff caliber teams and be in the midst of another win streak," admitted Raider coach Dave Brooks.

When Golden Empire League play resumes this week, 4-1 Bear River travels to 5-0 Colfax for their first meeting of the year before coming to West Sacramento to take on the 5-1 Raiders. The top two teams in the league make the Sac-Joaquin Section team playoffs at the end of May. River City downed Bear River 5 to 2 and fell 4 to 3 to Colfax in back-to-back road matches in March.

Last Tuesday found the Raiders at Travis Air Force Base for a contest against the Vanden Vikings of the Superior California Athletic League. The Raiders struggled in singles play, dropping three of four matches, but once again swept the three doubles matches to pull out a 4 to 3 overall win. Mirthala Santizo earned the lone singles win at #1, 6-4, 6-3 over one of the S.C.A.L.'s top players, Iris Arnedo. In doubles, Bethany Monroe and Meuy Saechao continued their unbeaten season with a 6-0, 7-6 victory, Ty Fisher and Ahmad Fazel won 6-1, 7-5, and with the overall match score tied at three, sophomores Jeff Wright and Douangchanh Lattasima clinched it with a 6-4, 6-0 mixed doubles win.

Friday afternoon brought the Mother Lode League's second place team, Bret Harte, to River City. After nearly a two-hour ride from Angels Camp, the Bullfrogs were dismantled by the Raiders 7 to 0. It was the Raiders fifth team shutout of the 1996 season. Highlights from one of the team's best performances of the year included wins at #1 boys singles from Bounthay Bouttavong 6-3, 7-6, at #2 girls singles from Khonthavy Phouanglasy 6-0, 6-0, and in girls doubles where Monroe and Saechao cruised 6-0, 6-1.

The afternoon was capped off by a thrilling boys doubles match. River City's Fisher and Fazel defeated Bret Harte's John Rash and Randy Bowersox 7-5, 7-6. Last season, Rash and Bowersox made it all the way to the boys doubles final at the year-end Section Individual Tournament.

"It was some very high-level tennis out there, the kind we'll need to have against Bear River on Thursday," said Brooks. "We'll be ready for the Bruins. Bring 'em on."

Mixed bag

You can expect the city council to leave the council's fifth seat vacant until the November election, and that is what they should do.

It would serve little purpose for the four remaining council members to appoint someone to fill the rest of the term vacated by Roland Hensley until 1998, when there is no pressing need to fill the seat.

Instead, the public should have a chance to vote on the person to serve the last two years of Hensley's , as he steps aside to convalesce.

Hensley's strength as a civil servant was his independent point of view; several times he used this to the city's best effect.

The city's challenge is to find someone skilled in local government, yet vigorously fresh and independent, to replace him.

The fences and gates will probably go up around Lighthouse, which should serve as another example of how we do not want to shape public/private development deals in the future. After an enormous investment of time and public money, we now have to downsize our expectations.

This should be a reminder to us. Whenever we make a deal with a developer, we should ask, "What is the worst possible case -- and can we live with that?"

Can we live with the financing arrangements now being adopted for the new bridge, or will we have to step in an offer a bailout later? How about our development agreement with the paper plant -- did we craft it strictly enough, or did we rely on good faith with a company that has the right to sell its rights? Did we make the right choices with the Southport Framework Plan, or will we soon be selling the farm?

A simple, two-part solution for phone solicitors raising money for causes that sound questionable:

A. Ask for it in writing and check out the facts before sending a check. Don't be afraid to find out how much of the money you give will actually go to charity.

B. Or just say no. If you don't know the organization, don't open your wallet or share your credit card number.

Cheaper: a mistake

In a defining moment in the history of Southport, the West Sacramento City Council voted on Wednesday night to ignore their own compelling vision and general plan for our city and sold out in the first real deal decision regarding the development of Southport. Tragically, the Council voted 3-0 to approve the building of a "Super Cheaper" on the corner of South Linden and Jefferson Blvd., and in doing so opened the doors for a grocery store chain that derives 39 percent of their sales from cigarettes, tobacco products, beer and hard liquor, and only 36 percent of their sales from groceries. (The reaming 25 percent of their sales are derived from the sale of gasoline.)

Apparently, we will now have to settle for a "Cheaper" version of what was envisioned for our community, because in the bottom of the 9th inning, council members Beers and Tuttle, along with Mayor Potnick (who by the way, were the three council members I had the most respect for) struck out when the tough decision had to be made. Based on this initial decision, I think all the new home owners in Southport -- who purchased their property partially because of the vision that was developed through a national design fair held in our city -- should begin to re-think just what the future of Southport will if the standard of commercial development established by this decision becomes the norm.

So how could solid leaders like Beers, Tuttle and Potnick make such a poor call? Frankly, it might be the pressures they face given our sluggish economy and the slow growth patterns which that economic instability creates, or maybe they believed their own soft staff analysis regarding exactly what would be sold in the new Super Cheaper. In either case, the Council -- who has thus far done a credible job managing the best real estate pocket in the Sacramento area -- caved in and did the easy thing instead of doing the "right" thing, and by picking this course of action, they may have sent a dangerous signal to future business opportunities that we have not yet overcome our "second class" mentality and perceived low self-esteem as a city.

Why don't I see a Super Cheaper in Stanford Ranch in Roseville; Laguna Creek in Elk Grove; or in any of the new areas in Folsom? My common sense tells me that the city council members in those communities don't want a glorified liquor store, pretending to sell groceries, in their new neighborhoods where potential home buyers (and solid taxpayers!) are looking for a nice community to raise their kids in. Alas, I am sad to report that common sense did not prevail on Wednesday night and so we can all look forward to the largest Super Cheaper in the State of California coming into our own community. To Greg, Cindy and Wes I offer this parting advice: next time you have to decide on the fate of Southport, stick to the vision you established when you spent thousands of dollars to develop a world class master plan; don't second guess yourselves and settle for less. We simply cannot afford any more poor decisions like this!

Alzheimer's support

Alzheimer's Disease (AD) is a progressive degenerative disease that attacks the brain, causing faulty memory, impaired thinking and erratic behavior. Victims deteriorate over a period of 3 to 20 years, and eventually require 24 hour supervision and custodial care.

Approximately 10 percent of people over 65 have AD; this percentage rises to almost half of those over 85.

In the greater Sacramento area, there are approximately 20,000 victims of AD, a number which will continue to increase as the population ages. These people will require increasingly intensive care as the disease progresses.

The Alzheimer's Association is a nationwide non-profit organization with more than 200 chapters in 50 states. The association serves all victims of dementia, whether AD or a related disorder, and serves their caregivers as well.

The association is seeking volunteers for work 3 or 4 hours weekly. Help is needed for clerical work, community outreach (public speaking), special events (wine tasting & Memory Walk), public policy (write, call, visit local representatives), telephone support (clarify problems and referral to service agency, or just plain listen) and direct patient contact.

Interested persons please contact Marie K. Jachino, Volunteer Coordinator, Alzheimer's Association, 4000 El Camino Avenue, Suite 103, Sacramento, CA, 95821, (916) 482-8290.

Non-profit groups may apply for grant money for recycling

The California Integrated Waste Management Board (CIWMB) has $2 million available in grants to award to nonprofit organizations for establishment of new or enhancement of existing used motor oil recycling programs. Applications are being accepted through June 14, 1996.

The CIWMB grants, available in amounts of up to $100,000 for each project, are intended to promote the collection and recycling of used motor oil. In 1995, more than 206 million gallons of oil were sold, and 118 million gallons were available for recycling, but only 76 million gallons were actually recycled. That leaves more than 40 million gallons of used oil that may have been poured down storm drains, into the ground, landfilled, or otherwise illegally disposed.

Grants will be awarded on a competitive basis to nonprofit organizations, which will help establish more recycling opportunities for the 40 million gallons of oil that is unaccounted for.

Eligible projects include the establishment of used oil collection centers and collection events; improve existing collection centers; purchase of collection containers; storm drain stenciling; and public education programs that address the proper collection and handling of used motor oil.

Funding for the CIWMB used motor oil grant program was established under the California Oil Recycling Enhancement Act of 1991. Under the act, oil manufacturers pay the board four cents for every quart of oil sold in California. These funds are then used by the board to encourage the legal management of used motor oil.

For more information on how to apply for a grant, or to receive an application, please contact the CIWMB Used Oil Grant program at 255-2891.

Crisis line volunteers are honored

On Tuesday, April 9, the crisis line volunteers of Suicide Prevention Yolo County were recognized for their outstanding contribution in the field of volunteerism at the 9th annual luncheon of the Golden Rule Awards.

The founder of the JC Penney Company, James Cash Penney, called his first stores "The Golden Rule." He believed in giving back to the community and in the concept of people helping people.

Fifteen groups were nominated for the group award and Suicide Prevention Yolo County was one of three agencies that won a $250 award, a plaque for outstanding achievement and a letter from President Clinton acknowledging the volunteers for their energy and dedication in providing solutions to the many problems that government alone cannot fix.

Diane Sommers, the executive director of Suicide Prevention, states, "We are very proud of our volunteers, both past and present, who have provided uninterrupted crisis line services 24 hours a day for nearly 30 years."

State grant pays for 40 local trees

The City of West Sacramento has received a federal Small Business Administration grant of $5,000, through the California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection (CDF), to plant 40 trees. The trees will be planted on the Alyce Norman Playfields site to continue to complete the project.

The Small Business Appropriation Act of 1990 authorized grants to any state for the purpose of contracting with small businesses to plant trees on land owned or controlled by state or local government. The purpose of the legislation is to encourage the development of small businesses, and to permit rapid increases in employment opportunities in local communities. Contracts have been awarded to the Brooks Landscaping Company to plant the trees and the Delta Tree Company to supply the trees.

Resident John Matos honored for service

West Sacramento resident John Matos, founder of the West Sacramento Junior Dragster Program, was recently chosen as the runner-up for the J.C. Penney Golden Rule Award. This award is presented to groups and individuals who have performed outstanding volunteer service in their communities. The nominees for the award were honored at a luncheon presented by the Volunteer Center of Sacramento/Yolo counties on April 9. Matos was presented with a Certificate of Recognition, and a check for his organization.

Matos created the Junior Dragster Program in order to provide youth with positive activities and role models. The program has formed a Junior Dragster Team of N.H.R.A. licensed drivers, which have won several trophies in events at the Sacramento Raceway and awards in West Sacramento community events.

Matos is also an active member of the West Sacramento Community Council and serves on the Board of the Yolo Youth Development Network. He volunteers at the Rivergate Youth and Family Center and is assisting with the development of a second Center at the Capitol City Apartments.

Item #5
Consideration of Amendment to Southport Adequate Access Interpretation

General Plan Policy provides for no major new development in Southport prior to provision of adequate access. A General Plan Interpretation done in 1990, define adequate access as the completion of a new bridge at Industrial or on Jefferson and major new development as the construction of more than one unit on an existing lot. The Interpretation also found that Building Permits could be issued, but occupancy not allowed until completion of access improvements. The Commission will consider whether to recommend a change to the interpretation to allow those residential developers participating in the financing of the Palamidessi Bridge Project to occupy homes after a specific date, based on the specified contract completion date for the Bridge.

Copies of the applications, legal descriptions, and environmental documents are on file in the office of the City of West Sacramento Community Development Department, 1951 South River Road, West Sacramento, California 95691.

All affected parties should appear and explain to the Commission the effect that the proposed projects will have on their property and to state any other relevant information. Jazz, personalities & fun:

New Orleans-style Hospice fest

New Orleans will be the theme for the 15th annual Jazz in the Park, Yolo Hospice's major fundraiser, on Friday, May 17, at the Veterans Memorial Building in Davis.

And good news for local jazz fans...Greentown Jazz Band, the internationally popular group who drew raves when they appeared here in 1994, will return with their swinging European interpretation of Dixieland.

From the small former Yugoslavia state of Slovenia, Greentown Jazz Band has won Northern California audiences "with their undefeatable optimism" ever since their first appearance with the Sacramento Jubilee. Favorites in just about every jazz festival in the world, a recent review from the Dresden Jazz Festival called them "a swinging traditional band playing the music that raises the audience from their seats."

Now about the food. Liz Belenis, who worked her culinary magic in past years with Mr. B's, will make a JIP encore with her own interpretation of New Orleans cuisine. Dinner will be served between 5:30 and 7:30 p.m., before the 8 p.m. concert.

Honoring the birthplace of jazz, co-chairs Tink Mendel, Davis and Nell Wallace, Clarksburg have recruited Elizabeth Merwin, a professional set designer, to transform the local Veterans Memorial Building into a New Orleans walled park. They have also lined up some familiar faces to play the lively characters who might be found there.

Young musical talent, the Davis High School Jazz Choir, will open the show, and do-op specialists Denim will entertain at intermission. Another new name to JIP will be local audio professional John Lee, who will manage sound, making sure each note is crisp without violating intact ear drums. Tom Wallace, Clarksburg, will again take up his role as emcee.

Don't miss the fun! Tickets for the event are $25 for dinner and the show, or $15 for the concert only, and are available from the Yolo Hospice office; Carousel Stationery in Davis; The Yolo Hospice Thrift Store in Woodland; and Strelitzia Flowers in both Woodland and Davis.

Steam engine on local rail line

From John P. McMahan
Senior Passenger Conductor
Yolo Shortline Company

Steam locomotive #1233 is on the Yolo Shortline Railroad, and it is scheduled to begin passenger trips on May 5, with a special excursion from Woodland to Clarksburg and return. During this trip only, the passengers will have lunch aboard the Sacramento River steamboat, the "Elizabeth Louise," and receive a commemorative pin. There will be a live band playing on board, and it is rumored that the "Sierra Outlaws" will stage a train robbery. This will be a historical occasion for more than one reason.

The locomotive to be used is a 1918 0-6-0 type, built by the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Eddystone, Pennyslavania. It was built for the Southern Pacific Railroad, and was used extensively as a switcher. It is owned by the Sacramento Valley Historical Railways, and it is leased to the Yolo Shortline, who has completely rebuilt it for excursion service.

My limited research shows that this will be the very first steam locomotive to use this route. When they built the original line between Sacramento and Woodland in the early 1900's, it was built as an electric railroad. True, steam "dummies" were used in the construction of the line, but they were really not locomotives. The first operator of the line, Northern Electric, never owned a steam locomotive.

The Woodland branch was originally all electric, using mostly 3rd rail, but it had overhead catenary in the cities. Overhead catenary was also used on the Holland (Clarksburg) branch.

Passenger operations thrived between Sacramento and Woodland, but they ended in 1941. Freight on the Woodland branch continued to be hauled by electric locomotives. Of course, by this time, Northern Electric had merged with the Oakland, Antioch, and Eastern, to form Sacramento Northern. Then came the first diesels, 44 ton General Electrics. The combined SN never owned a steam engine. Next came larger Alco and EMD diesel units working the line. But never a steam locomotive.

Long-time owner of the SN, Western Pacific, had lots of steam locomotives, but to our knowledge, never ran one on the Woodland Branch.

So what we have here, is history in the making! The first steam ever on the line, and to top it off, it will be a Southern Pacific locomotive that will do the honors!

SHOTS from p. 2

Dr. Bates added that infants who start immunizations on time (at 6 weeks to 2 months of age) are more likely to stay on schedule and receive the total number of doses recommended by age 2. He further added that the good news is that in the last few years, the number of children who are adequately protected against communicable diseases has increased. This is due to the efforts of thousands of individuals throughout this country who have worked to raise awareness about childhood immunizations and ensure that children receive the necessary shots.

Although some parents have been concerned about the number of shots their child must receive to be adequately immunized, some of the vaccines are now combined into one shot so there are fewer shots at each visit.

The Yolo County Health Department has low cost special immunization clinics on Monday afternoons from 2 to 4 p.m. and Friday mornings from 9 to 11 a.m. in Woodland; on Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 4 in West Sacramento; and on the first Wednesday of the first month from 1 to 3:30 at the Winters Library. On the last Monday of every month, the clinic hours in Woodland are extended to 6 p.m. No appointment is ever necessary. Free immunizations are available for children who qualify. Parents should bring their children's immunization records with them.

For more information about immunizations for children in Yolo County, please call the Yolo County Health Department at 666-8645.
